Introduction

The market infrastructure to support EU derivatives reforms is quickly taking shape.

- 2014 saw the first authorisations of EU central counterparties (CCPs). The first authorisation took place on 18 March 2014, triggering the commencement of the first clearing obligation procedure under Article 5(2) of the EU regulation on OTC derivatives, central counterparties and trade repositories (EMIR). The first regulatory technical standards (RTS) imposing a clearing obligation are likely to be published in the Official Journal in Q2 2015.
- The EMIR reporting regime, in force since 12 February 2014, is supported by a number of EU trade repositories (TR) which are registered with, and directly supervised by, the European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA).
- ESMA maintains the following registers:
 - a public list of authorised CCPs;
 - a public register of the classes of OTC derivatives that CCPs have been authorised to clear; and
 - a public list of registered trade repositories.
- These can be accessed on ESMA's website: <http://www.esma.europa.eu/page/Registries-and-Databases>

Progress has been slower for non-EU CCPs and TRs.

- On 31 October 2014, the European Commission (Commission) adopted equivalence determinations for the regulatory regimes of CCPs in Australia, Hong Kong, Japan and Singapore. An equivalence determination is a necessary precondition for CCPs established in these jurisdictions to obtain recognition by ESMA to provide clearing services in the EU.
- A number of other conditions must also be met before ESMA can recognise CCPs from these jurisdictions. In particular, ESMA must first establish cooperation agreements with the relevant competent authorities in each jurisdiction. ESMA has entered into a memorandum of understanding with the relevant Australian regulators for CCP supervision.
- The Commission is understood to be working on assessments for twelve additional jurisdictions, including the US. Finalising these assessments is stated to be a top priority for the Commission.
- There is no indication yet as to when the Commission expects to be able to make equivalence determinations under Article 13 of EMIR. An Article 13 equivalence decision must be in place before firms can rely on the intragroup exemption for transactions between EU and non-EU group entities.
- ESMA maintains a non-exhaustive list of non-EU CCPs which have applied for recognition under Article 25 of EMIR. This can be accessed on ESMA's website: <http://www.esma.europa.eu/page/Central-Counterparties>
- Whilst EMIR also contains a recognition regime for TRs established outside the EU, the preconditions to recognition (including the need for equivalence determinations and international agreements between the EU and the relevant non-EU jurisdictions) have meant that, in practice, no progress on this front has yet been made.

The following charts illustrate the current status of CCPs and TRs in the EU.

* Recital 2 of the amended draft RTS indicates that contracts with conditional notional amounts will not be subject to the clearing obligation. In particular, the recital acknowledges that a distinction exists between variable notionals (notionals which vary over the life of the contract in a predictable way) and conditional notionals (notionals which vary over the life of the contract in an unpredictable way).

 ESMA expects that ICE Clear Europe will be authorised before the entry into force of the RTS on CDS.
